Ages 4-7. This simple photo-essay encourages young children to think about the many things they have to be thankful for. An adorable curly haired tyke hugs herself: "I'm thankful for me." Other children are grateful for the things they can do, like paint a picture; or what they have, like a bike. Four square photos on one page show children of different races with family members. The following pictures show kids happy to be with family and friends--including a boy with his pet mouse. These very crisp, joyful pictures show real kids appreciative of their homes and of nature. There will be myriad ways to use this, not the least of which will be sharing it one on one and talking about what it means to be thankful. Ilene Cooper

Beautiful Book

By Diane Y.

This book simply touched me as I looked at the beautiful photographs of children expressing thanksgiving for the things and people in their lives. Young children will be able to express their own feelings of gratitude as they look at the photos. Older children could even make a book of a similiar format themselves with their own personal photos or drawings. This is not a preachy book, but simply shows children things they can be thankful for. It is not necessarily a "Thanksgiving" holiday book...but is a super book for that time of the year.
