Just alright...

By rz06g4

It's hard to describe what I feel about this book. It's definitely not like or dislike, but just – meh. Many spoilers ahead, so stop reading now if you don't want to know any. This book is about college student Grace from the U.S. She lands a prestigious internship in London at Huntington Ventures, where it just so happens that the founder/CEO is a superhot Brit and member of the aristocracy, Jonathan Huntington. As fate would have it, she crosses his path upon arriving in London and immediately catches his attention. But unbeknownst to her, she also catches the attention of Jonathan's creepy Japanese associate Yuuto Nagako. Grace's coworker, Annie, tries to warn her away from a guy like Jonathan... but you know she doesn't listen. As they engage in an "only sex, nothing more" affair, Grace (stereotypically) finds herself falling for Jonathan. But is she willing to accept what little Jonathan can offer in terms of a "relationship"?

And the answer to this question at the end of the story is – No. But of course, Grace doesn't come to that healthy conclusion until she engages in said affair, meets his family and closest friend (who both seem to like her a lot), and agrees to go with Jonathan to an exclusive (sex) club. It is while at the club does Grace realize she wants to be exclusive (because she loves him), whereas Jonathan likes to get his kicks with a lot of random strangers. Not to mention Yuuto wanted her to come to the club from the jump, and that still didn't send up enough flags for Grace to pass on the whole situation. So, of course this story ends on a cliffhanger – Jonathan runs after Grace in the rain as she's fleeing from (high-class) Swingersville. But what does he have to offer to make her stay now that she realizes she can't go through with a one-sided relationship? I'll have to read the next story to find out. Which I will but, I do want to say this...

This story is such a 50 Shades knock-off; with that being said, aren't they all? And 50 Shades is probably a knock-off of another story, but regardless, they all seem so formulaic:

- Normally unattainable billionaire uber-hunk
- Naïve early 20s woman, who doesn't realize how beautiful she is
- "Impossible" relationship problems to overcome
- Strange sexual appetites
- Family problems
- Weird older sexual mentor

So why did I read this book? – Because I was intrigued by the description of the last book of the series, but knew I'd have to read the first two to understand what was going on. And read on I shall, if not for any other reason than I always try to read a story straight through. And seeing as how I was provided all three books via NetGalley (in exchange for an honest review), an honest review I have given.

An Internship in more ways than one

By SJF

Grace is a student at the University of Chicago studying Economics. She wins an internship to Huntington Ventures in England. The CEO, Jonathan Huntington, is one of the most eligible bachelors in England.

He doesn't have relationships, only sex, and belongs to an exclusive sex club. His desires seem to come from a dark side and troubled past.

Grace is naive, has never really been in a relationship and is a virgin. She has focused solely on her studies. She is unable to resist this dominant billionaire and his sex appeal and skill she mixes business and pleasure. She interns in his company and bed against the advice of many around her. He doesn't want to only have sex with her either. Can she handle his lifestyle?

The sex scenes are off the charts hot and there are a lot of them. The book ends with a cliffhanger and I can't wait to read the next installment.

A complimentary copy of this book was given to me, by the publisher, in exchange for an honest review.

Really great read!

By Sissymae

This is book one in the "Colours of Love" Series. This is my first book by this author too...but once I read this book I had to go and find book two 'Uncovered' because I had to know how things ended. Yes, book one does have a cliffhanger similar to 50 Shades of Grey where you need to the next book to pick up their story. Also it touched lightly on 50 Shades of Grey in their love scene but did not go as far. I truly liked this story and really go into the characters and even the secondary characters were really good!

Grace our heroine, is a young 22 year old lady who has never really left home and has only been going to college but she get a internship at a London Office for three months and decides that she really wants to go. Grace has been following the company history and the owner. On her first day in London at the airport she see Jonathan Huntington who is the owner of the company. She thinks at first he is there to pick her up and she goes to him only to find out he doesn't even know her but is there to pick up some Japanese colleges. So embarrassed she starts to walk away trying to find other transportation when he comes up to her and tells her they will take her to his office. When he drops her off at the office everyone is shocked that she had caught his attention and that he even gave her the time of day. The next day she is called into his office and he offers her to intern as his assistant and her original interning job. She quickly agrees know this is a good opportunity for her and her future career. Grace does wonder if she can handle the attraction she feels for him and do this job at the same time but decides to go forward with the offer. Grace starts to find that Jonathan is not so immune to her either.. But Jonathan seems very cold him some of his attitude towards her. Jonathan does act different around his sister and his best friend so she knows he is can be somewhat off guard at times. I really cannot say enough about this book and hope that you too will enjoy their emotional and wonderful story.
